Welcome to the 2003-2004 edition of Manchester Philanthropy. This is a most important issue as it uplifts those who acknowledge their belief in the Mission of Manchester College with a gift of financial support. This contributors’ honor roll celebrates those who invest in us and our future – specifically those who made a gift to Manchester College from July 1, 2003 through June 30, 2004.

While I relish the opportunity to write this letter to all of you, I also experience frustration. How can I adequately thank those who give of their hard-earned resources? The short answer is I cannot. No words or pretty descriptions can fully describe the appreciation all of us at Manchester College feel for our valued contributors. However, I will try to illustrate why your gifts are so important.

The obvious reason is the amount we receive. Your gifts totaling more than $9.2 million in 2003-04 allowed us to do many things. First, through gifts to The Manchester Fund, we were able to provide our students the tools they need to succeed. The Manchester Fund is a key resource for:

1) financial aid, making Manchester an affordable choice for our students
2) technological upgrades so our students are well-equipped for their chosen professions, and
3) helping retain our fabulous faculty who mentor our students as they pursue their ambitions.

We also received gifts to endowed scholarships and other endowed funds. These gifts provide special assistance to deserving students. Finally, the benefits of gifts to our building projects are self-evident. Wow! What an impact those structures are making.

The not-so-obvious importance of your gift is what they represent. We are appreciative of all gifts, regardless of size, because those gifts represent your willingness to invest in Manchester College. We keep track of how many people give to Manchester because this is an indicator of the College’s overall strength and value.

For example, we closely monitor how many alumni give each year and track that percentage. From July 1, 2003 through June 30, 2004, almost 35 percent of alumni made a gift to Manchester College. This rate is well above the national average of 20.8 percent, according to The Council for Aid to Education. High alumni giving percentages make Manchester attractive to foundations. U.S. News & World Report also uses this percentage in rating Manchester College among the Best Colleges in the Midwest.

Your gift also is an investment in the future. I wish each of you could spend a day at the College, getting to know our students. They are bright, energetic and hard-working. One of the joys of my job is knowing that I help, in a very small way, in educating our students each year. As Manchester College students meet success, I feel a special sense of pride. I hope you feel the same pride, for it is through your generous support that these successes happen. So the next time you read about a Manchester College student or recent grad doing something great, take a moment and say, “I helped make that dream come true!”

With much appreciation,

Cathy D. Gatchel
Director of The Manchester Fund
The President’s Circle recognizes the generous annual contributions of $1,000 or more from our alumni and friends.

Please Tell Us.

Did we get it right? Rita J. Schroll, divisional assistant for the Office of College Advancement, is a stickler for detail, and are we glad! As administrator of this Honor Roll of philanthropy, she wants your name to appear exactly the way you want. Please tell us about any changes you prefer on the reply card we have inserted into this magazine or e-mail Rita at rjschroll@manchester.edu. Thanks!
Dr. Jo Young ’69 Switzer assumed the Manchester College presidency on Dec. 1, and Dr. Parker G. Marden, as president on leave, turned his focus on completing fund-raising goals for a redesigned College Union and The Manchester Fund.

Switzer, vice president and dean for academic affairs since 1993, was selected by the Trustees in August to become the College’s 14th president. Marden will retire this summer.

Switzer also has taught at MC and Indiana University-Purdue University, Fort Wayne and holds a doctorate and master’s in communication studies from University of Kansas. She is author of numerous academic articles and co-author of a communications textbook. Switzer chaired the national deans’ task force of the Council of Independent Colleges and serves as a consultant evaluator for North Central Association.

President Switzer’s inauguration will take place in fall 2005.
MC philanthropists are emeriti faculty, former executives, Trustees, students, foundations .... treasured friends all

Manchester College annually honors friends who exemplify responsible philanthropy. It's a wonderful opportunity for students to learn of the possibilities of philanthropy.

“We try to lead by example,” says Robert S. Frantz, former MC business office manager. “You have to do something to earn a living, but in addition, try to make the world a better place.”

Robert and Alice Frantz were honored at the March 8, 2004 Philanthropy Convocation with two other couples, a foundation and four students. The conservationists have given property to ACRES Land Trust and donate time and funds to the College.

Emeriti science Professor R. Emerson “Doc” and Evelyn Niswander established an endowment for MC science faculty and assist in Science Center fund-raising.

Trustee Becky ’82 and Paris ’81 Ball-Miller took out a loan to fulfill their pledge to the College. “I see it as an investment in the future of students and the culture the College exudes,” says Becky. “I’m a firm believer that investing in missions like Manchester College has the power to change the world.”

The Community Foundation of Wabash County, with more than $17 million in assets, holds more than 175 endowed funds, supporting activities ranging from education to social service to the arts. Manchester College – from its public programs to faculty projects – is a frequent recipient of the Foundation's philanthropy.

All four students honored have volunteering in their blood. They started giving back as youngsters and continue to find time amid studies and extra-curricular activities to give to the community and their College.

COMPETE.

A Fulbright tradition. Manchester produces more Fulbright Scholars per capita enrollment than any other college or university in Indiana. 2004 grads Hannah Ditmars of Pickrell, Neb. (left) and Rosetta Burkholder of Shipshewana, Ind. continue the Fulbright tradition at Manchester College as they study overseas for the 2004-2005 school year.
Corporate hand-me-downs. Biology Professor David P. Kreps poses with a used Sorvall Superspeed Refrigerated Centrifuge that Zimmer Inc. of Warsaw, Ind., has given to the College for student research labs in the new Science Center. Chemistry and biology students will use the super spinner to separate particles and molecules, such as DNA samples or sedimentary bacteria. Thank you, Zimmer!

Hello? Manchester College calling!

Students connect with alumni donors for The Manchester Fund

By Megan Hineline ’04

The little room at the end of the second floor of the Administration Building is one of the busiest rooms on the Manchester College campus from early October through mid-April. While the rest of the building is quiet and settled for the night, phonathon students are working their telephone magic for The Manchester Fund.

“How are you doing tonight?” inquire the cheery voices. “I’m calling tonight to talk to you about Manchester College. Do you have a moment?”

The laughter and conversation echoes down the halls as callers connect with alumni and friends of the College to share first-hand what’s happening on campus and to seek pledges. Manchester College’s student fund-raisers are extremely successful, with a combination of leadership, enthusiasm, fun and hard work.

Donors seemed to delight in the newsy conversations with today’s students – the tangible result of their donations to The Manchester Fund. This year, the sound from the little room turned musical, adding to the fun ... and the connection. The students learned that some donors will increase their gifts ... if the students sing the MC song. The student callers collected more pledges than ever, for good reason: They made twice as many phone calls as in the previous year.

They are prepared with lots of MC facts to update alumni about changes on campus. They also ensure the College has the most current information about alumni addresses and that alumni are receiving their free Manchester Magazine. The callers are nurtured by Laura Sloop ’99, assistant director of development, and Cathy Gatchel, director of The Manchester Fund and creator of MC’s phonathon.

The students explain how gifts to The Manchester Fund help cover the cost of education for students, enabling Manchester to offer scholarships and financial aid packages, and to pay day-to-day expenses of running the liberal arts college.

“We always tell our student callers the phonathon call may be the only person-to-person contact some alumni receive from Manchester College,” says Gatchel. “Whether the call results in a pledge or refusal, we endeavor to make every call a positive experience.”

This year, student callers raised $210,500 from 2,468 generous pledgers. First-time and increased gifts grew.

“The success of our phonathon program has one key ingredient: dedicated, enthusiastic, professional student callers,” says Cathy Gatchel, director of The Manchester Fund.

“I know of some colleges and universities that hire professional telemarketing firms to conduct their annual phonathons. But the connection between current student and former student cannot be replicated by a professional telemarketer.”

Sometimes, members of the Board of Trustees gather in the tiny room to make the calls. “We invite some of our top student callers to assist the Board members throughout the night,” Gatchel says. “Not only is this effort very successful, it gives our student callers insight to the dedication of our Board members.”

The Manchester College community gathered on July 16, 2004 to celebrate placement of the last steel beam of the $17 million Science Center. That beam bears the signatures of scores of MC faculty, alumni, employees and students.

The Marden Years: Reflections upon a most remarkable presidency

We could enfold the Manchester College legacy of Parker and Ann Marden into that dictum. It’s true enough: Parker ever the teacher, together their delight in “internationalizing” MC in body and spirit, their presence among the students at activities and athletic events, the donning of clown’s attire to the glee of philanthropic students, Parker’s personal e-mails to students struggling and challenging the rules, the couple’s tears of pride and shared sorrow with students.

“I love our students,” says Marden simply. He knows the students, eats with them, cheers with them and has endured most undignified challenges to cement his relationship with the students. From his opening convocation on Aug. 31, 1994, his speeches and conversations have been filled with history lessons and frequently, he taught classes in sociology. The October 2003 fire in Schwalm Hall devastated Parker. “They tried to hurt my students,” he declared angrily.

When students received hate messages, “Papa Parker” climbed the stairs to their residence hall rooms to offer his and Ann’s home as sanctuary and comfort. The Mardens certainly will miss their students the most when the northeasterners retire to their new home in Maine – students from the Midwest as well as students from countries afar.

“We are more diverse; we are more international,” Marden notes with no little pride, displaying yet another one of the many reasons Manchester College and its Church of the Brethren (CoB) roots are such a fine fit for the Mardens. Each year, the campus has become more comfortable with its diversity, Marden explains.

At Commencement 2005, tears will surely fall as the Mardens watch “their” students cross the stage.

While Parker will continue to do research, scholarly study and consulting in leave and retirement, he faces an unhappy realization that he will lose his students. “They keep me going,” he mused on a particularly trying day.

“He’s actions through the years remind us of the value of the small college experience,” noted Jonathon Watson, associate professor of English, at Marden’s final Address to Faculty on Aug. 26, 2004. “He’s bringing outstanding sophomores to Chicago for a week-long seminar, he’s taking a midnight tour of the dorms on 9/11 to comfort students, he’s “speaking out” against the local newspaper’s “Speaking Out” column, he’s accompanying the Manchester choir to Rome.”

Only the second MC president to come from outside the CoB fold, Marden comfortably embraced the Church’s ideals. “He has worked tirelessly to collaborate with other Church of the Brethren colleges,” notes David A. Haist ’73, who served two terms as chair of the Board of Trustees during the Marden years.

The Marden leadership touched students in myriad ways, from the very top of the organization.

Manchester College now has a more-diverse Board of Trustees. As a whole, it is younger, with more women, and a wider range of work experiences, geographical viewpoints and ideas. And, during his tenure, a generous Board stepped up to a $1 million Lilly Endowment challenge.

The vice presidential staff also is diverse, with 50 percent of the VPs women, among them Marden’s successor, Jo Young ’69 Switzer.

Marden has no edifice complex, even though the campus has transformed during his leadership – from a renovated Funderburg Library with 180,000 volumes to a new intercultural center and recital hall, to the $17 million Science Center nearing completion … the largest structure in the history of MC. He also led design of an enlarged and redefined College Union for students, alumni and the neighboring community. There’s more: Brown Fitness Center, Friermood Hall of Storage honoring a treasured employee, renovation of Calvin Ulrey and Schwalms halls, parking areas around the Union and athletic fields, new soccer fields, Stadium Drive …

During the Marden years, MC also experienced an attitude shift: one of self-confidence and a willingness to shake free of the response of “We’ve never done it that way before” and to market the College.

And technology made a sea change on campus. In 1994, the new president was grappling with fax machine malfunctions. In 2000, Manchester College joined Yahoo’s “Most-Wired Campuses” and today offers wireless technology, interactive classrooms, and communication based on the Intranet and Internet.

MC has built a talented, diverse faculty that delivers programs well-respected in the state and the nation, particularly for its development of educators, accountants and medical professionals. Manchester is consistently a “Best College” of U.S. News & World Report and of the Princeton Review. Marden is quick to give credit to then-Dean Jo Young Switzer, noting that he tried to let the leaders lead.

First Year Colloquium and service learning came into their own during his tenure, providing MC students …

“Being president of a college is an incredibly difficult job,” Parker Marden admits and is quick to add he could not have done it alone. Time and time again, when he takes the podium and in conversation, he acknowledges his partnership with Ann. From the stage, from his eyes.

In their partnership, Ann Marden served as college hostess and as director of special events. Often, she represented the president in his absence, and accommodated special guests in the presidential residence — including Coretta Scott King and U.S. Speaker of the House Dennis Hastert.

“I chose to play an active part in Parker’s presidency,” Ann says. “Parker and I are a team and we have been for a long time … my first and most important job is to support the president.

Ann served the community as a member of the Board of Directors of Family Service Society Inc. of Marion and Wabash counties and of the Wabash County Domestic Violence Task Force, which honored her for her service by planting a tree in North Manchester.

opportunities and experiences that are uniquely Manchester. MC won national acclaim with the 2002 U.S. Professor of the Year Jim Adams. Marden proudly points to teaching enhanced and supported by dynamic, exciting programs – from FYC (see an example on Page 50) to off-campus classrooms and faculty scholarships and projects. “What I really did was get out of the way of faculty and the deans,” he says.

“Parker has shown enormous faith in the faculty, and that has done much to maintain our morale,” says Abby Fuller, associate professor of sociology and social work. She calls Marden’s impact on MC “enormous.” “Not all college presidents allow faculty such decision-making power, nor treat them as peers like Parker does, nor remind them daily what an essential part of the institution they are.”

Manchester College’s success in fund-raising is stunning. During the Marden years, MC tackled a $52 million The Next Step! fund-raising goal that drew much skepticism. Together, the Mardens visited donors and friends all over the nation. By Dec. 1, the College had raised $59 million toward its goal, fueled by a number of Lilly Endowment challenges well-met. The College has connected with hundreds of first-time donors, making friends and laying the foundation for future goals.

Marden also served as chair of the Independent Colleges of Indiana for three years, and led a collection of funding among Indiana presidents to support a struggling Martin University. (That small school thanked him with an honorary degree.)

“His ability to focus on the things that matter most has made him one of the most effective and intellectually vital college leaders that I have encountered in my career,” says ICI President Hans C. Giesecke.

“He is someone who seems to relish, at all times, the challenges and opportunities of the small college experience,” notes Associate Professor Watson.

“Over Parker Marden’s tenure as our president, the College has been recognized as one of the best liberal arts colleges in the nation, has had 17 of its students selected as Fulbright scholars and has been repeatedly confirmed by foundations and donors as a college deserving of its investment,” says Dave Haist, former Board chair.

“We are privileged to have had President Marden’s service and we will celebrate the achievements accomplished thorough his leadership for generations to come.”

Curtain rises on Wine Recital Hall

Donors, alumni gather to sing, applaud, and find their seats

Hundreds of alumni, donors and other members of the Manchester family gathered Oct. 8-9, 2004 during Homecoming to help dedicate the Norman and Grace Wine Recital Hall. Donors found the seats they had named in honor of loved ones, joined the A Cappella Choir and enjoyed the art exhibit (by Assistant Professor Lee Morse) in Link Gallery. They also met Madonna Wine ’46 Goss (in center of photo at right), and peeked at a rare Sauer Bible her family loaned to MC for the celebration.
Otho Winger Society recognizes those who have included the College in their estate plan or have established a deferred gift with Manchester College.

The Society, begun in 1991, is named for President Otho Winger, who served Manchester College for 30 years.

New Members

REMEMBER

The Otho Winger Society. Named for former MC President Otho Winger (1911-1941), this Society endeavors to recognize those who have designated Manchester College in their wills or who have made deferred gifts to strengthen the financial stability of Manchester College. To learn more about this tradition, call 260-982-5412.
Manchester College

Mission Statement

Manchester College is an independent, co-educational college in the liberal arts tradition, affiliated with the Church of the Brethren. It is committed to being a community of faith and learning. Manchester affirms the relevance of values to the search for knowledge and has a dual commitment to intellectual integrity and Christian faith, believing that sound scholarship and learning can strengthen both.

The College welcomes students of diverse interests and ages, as well as those of different ethnic, religious, and racial backgrounds. Within the constraints of financial responsibility, the educational program combines liberal education, career preparation, and education for service, while fostering a desire to improve the quality of life. Manchester College seeks to graduate people who possess ability and conviction, and who understand truth as it is perceived from scientific, moral, philosophical, and historical perspectives.

Within a long tradition of concern for peace and justice, Manchester College intends to develop an international consciousness, a respect for ethnic and cultural pluralism, and an appreciation for the infinite worth of every person. A central goal of the College community is to create an environment which nurtures a sense of self-identity, a strong personal faith, a dedication to the service of others, and an acceptance of the demands of responsible citizenship.

It’s chemistry!

Students and MC’s Mission connect in philanthropy formula for Camp Mack

Remember the chapel at Camp Mack? That primitive yet substantial stone structure whose pulpit opens to Lake Waubee? And do you remember the gorgeous stained glass windows surrounding the pews? Long-timers do.

But MC grads of recent decades likely were uninspired by the ugly greenish/brownish glass that remains above the dirt floor of the three-walled structure. Those original, colorful stained glass windows long-ago brides, grooms and campers may recall were donations from a church that had closed.

And, well, it is a camp.

Over the years, many of the windows were broken. Without the funds for professional restoration, Camp Mack substituted plain glass, discarding the hundreds of original stained glass pieces.

And then along came an organic chemist and her classes of first-year students. Dr. Susan J. Klein, an associate professor of chemistry with an interest in stained glass, suggested restoration would make a perfect First Year Colloquium (FYC). Indeed it was … for the new students, for Camp Alexander Mack and for the Manchester College Mission.

FYC helps first-year students adapt to the college environment and expectations and establishes close relationships with faculty. Faculty suggest the courses, often drawing from their personal interests rather than their disciplines. In her FYC, Dr. Klein combines history, art, craft skills, study skills, research … and philanthropy.

The project is saving Camp Mack, a ministry of the Church of the Brethren, thousands of dollars while reinforcing the bond between camp and college. “Service learning is an important part of the fabric of this College,” noted President Jo.
Over the past several years, Max ’55 and Joyce Wheeler ’56 Douglas have presented their alma mater with samples from their collection of 230 Nativity sets. The Manchester College collection now contains almost 60 sets. The materials range from corn husks, wood and papier-mâché to clay, coconut shells, porcelain, foil, fabric and even banana leaves. The Douglasses commissioned this clay set from northern Ghana (shown partially) in honor of the service of 13th President Parker G. Marden and Ann W. Marden. The Nativity sets are on display annually in December.
